A PREMONITION OF DEATH.

Mrs. Booth-Tucker Is Said to Have Seen the End.

The late Mrs. Booth-Tucker, consul of the Salvation Army, had a premonition of death the Sunday before she met it in the Santa Fe wreck at Dean Lake, Mo. Lieutenant Colonel Addie described her showing the feeling to the large audience that gathered in the Salvation Army citadel the other night, says the Kansas City Journal, for the special services dedicated to her memory.

He had been down in Texas, but when he received a wire telling him that Mrs. Booth-Tucker was to pass through Kansas City he hurried back there to his command to greet her. As she was to be in Kansas City only an hour, stopping over on her way to Chicago, he met her at Topeka and rode from there to Kansas City with her.

She inquired what song his division of the army was using with most force just at that time, and he told her that it was her old favorite, "You Never, Never Can Tell," with new words he had adapted to the music.

She asked him to sing it to her, and as the words rolled from his lips a far-away look stole into her eyes, and, he said, she seemed to see from afar the fate that was awaiting her. When he came to the last verse she asked him to repeat it and joined in the words:

Time and place will cease to know you,
Men and things will pass away.
You'll be moving on tomorrow;
You are only here today.

CHORUS.

You can never tell when your death bell's tolling;
You can never tell when your end will be.
Cast your poor soul in the sin cleansing fountain;
Come and get saved and happy be.
When next he saw her she was cold in death.

A Shock For Ministers.

The members of the general synod of the German Protestant church recently sitting in Berlin received a series of shocks the day the subject of duelling came up. A motion was submitted declaring the practice of duelling to be sinful and demanding its complete abolition, which was a sacred duty on the part of the church to secure. The chairman of the committee which discussed the motion was Graf Stosch. He startled his hearers by declaring that despite his advanced age the only way in which he as a man of honor could resent an insult was by a duel. Another prominent lay member, Herr von Gerlach, said similar things. The motion, however, was carried by a very large majority.

Shot His Churchgoing Wife.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18.—Meeting his wife in a throng of worshippers with whom she had just left the Sacred Heart church on Columbus avenue, John Tracy, a blacksmith, drew a revolver and fired five shots at her, emptying all the charges of the weapon. One of the shots took effect, inflicting a dangerous though not necessarily fatal wound above the woman's right hip. The other bullets went wild, but one passed through the skirt of a young girl and narrowly missed hitting her. Tracy was immediately arrested. When searched two revolvers, a dagger and two boxes of cartridges were taken from him.

Skinner at Jibuti.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The navy department is informed that the gunboat Machias arrived at Jibuti with Consul General Skinner and the other members of the expedition to Abyssinia, where the consul general will negotiate a commercial treaty with King Menelik. It is estimated at the navy department that the trip to the Abyssinian capital and return will occupy two or three weeks' time. The Machias will remain at Jibuti until the party returns and then take the consul general back to Marseilles, which is his regular station.

Eastern Negotiations Resumed.
